Cloud Accounting

What is Cloud Accounting?

Cloud Accounting serves the same function as accounting software that you install on your desktop computer. The difference is your data is securely stored and processed on servers – or “in the cloud” – which means you can access it using your web browser, over the internet.

Why move to the Cloud?

Here are some reasons why you might like the cloud:

You can manage your finances anywhere, anytime – all you need is an internet connection. Even if you don't always have good internet service, a cloud product may still be suited to your business as some of the offerings enable you to work offline as well as online.

It's safe and secure. It has the same level of security as internet banking. Data is encrypted and constantly backed up so that reduces the chance of losing data through computer hardware malfunctions.

Bank feeds. Your bank statements are automatically imported into your cloud based software. You can save time on data entry and reconciliation of bank accounts. The software can pick up repeating transactions and automatically match customer receipts and supplier payments to invoices raised.

Real time collaboration with your accountant – several users can access your file at once on most of the cloud based products so this means we can assist you with a query you may be having in real time. This also means no more backing up files and sending them over.

No constant upgrades – your software provider will look after all maintenance of the cloud product.
